

Two interacting particles on the half-line

Tobias Mühlenbruch

Abstract

We present a simple 2-particle quantum system which lives on the positive real half-line. The two particles interact only when at least one particle is situated at origin. Assuming a finite range interaction potential we discuss spectral properties of the system, focusing in particular on showing the (existence of an) isolated ground state.